David Dennis

A medieval city of drama, myth and mystery, Marrakech will captivate all who venture behind its ochre-coloured walls. Step inside and you will be transported back to a place and time that has been consigned to the annals of history. The winding alleys of the medina and the sights and sounds of the souks, the human drama that is Djemaa el-Fna square and the Atlas Mountains rearing up in the background, make Marrakech, Morocco's jewel in the crown.

THE CITY

The city divides into two highly contrasting districts. The medina, founded by the Almoravids nearly 1,000 years ago, and the Ville Nouvelle, a French colonial modernist project from the early 20th century. It is the medina, and its central square Djemaa el-Fna, that will undoubtedly fire the imagination.

Djemaa el-Fna is the heart and soul of Marrakchi life, and really comes alive with the setting of the sun, when a caravanasi of food vendors, selling all manner of Moroccan delicacies descend on the square. These are accompanied by snake charmers, wide-eyed story tellers, musicians and performers that lend a medieval scent to the night air. To the north of the square are the important religious buildings and the souks, while to the south are the Imperial quarters where the palaces and monuments of past rulers proudly stand.

The Ville Nouvelle, which in comparison to the medina is a decidedly more ordered and sedate affair, divides into the areas of Gueliz and Hivernage. Here you will find an array of civic buildings, international hotels, bars and restaurants typical of any modern European city.

SHOPPING

Marrakech is a shopper's nirvana! A place where some of the finest hand crafted goods won't cost you the earth and, to add to the paradisiacal tone, you're actively expected to bargain, what more could one ask for? If this sounds like your idea of consumer heaven then head direct for the souks in the North of the Medina, where you will find different artisans fashioning all manner of products. If you're looking for accessories for that special night out, then head along Rue Souq-el-Kebir, where you will find the jewellery and bag makers' markets!

There's also the slipper market, for that most essential of Moroccan footwear...the babouche, which you can slip into after the night's revelries. Other markets to look out for include the leather market and the carpet market where you can pick-up high quality hand-woven rugs. For sheer interest alone, and to watch real craftsmen at work, be sure to wander through the blacksmiths', dyers' and carpenters' markets. If the bustle of the souk gets to be too much, and you're all bartered out, then head over to the Ville Nouvelle where the shopping experience comes air conditioned-boutique style. Here you will find exclusive designer wear and one-off original items, artisan and antique shops and warehouse outlets. Happy shopping!
