The urban atmosphere of Denpasar, Bali's bustling capital city and business and administrative hub, contrasts sharply with the serene Hindu temples, green terraced rice fields and superb sandy beaches nearby. Denpasar is a cosmopolitan, modern city that has grown rapidly in the past three decades and in many ways it has more in common with other Indonesian regional capitals than with its island hinterland. Nevertheless, it is worth a visit, even if you prefer to stay in one of the resort areas nearby rather than in the city itself.

THE ISLAND

Located on the south coast of Bali, Denpasar is the regional capital and the main gateway to Indonesia's most popular holiday island. The city is a main business and administrative centre, and is home to a mixed population of Balinese, Javanese and other immigrants from elsewhere in the archipelago. Most visitors head for the neighbouring resort areas of Kuta, Sanur and Nusa Dua where most of the island's hotels, restaurants, shopping facilities and nightlife are located.

Jalan Gajah Mada is the city's main thoroughfare, running east to west, and is usually jam-packed with traffic.

Puputan Square is the hub of downtown Denpasar, with lawns and greenery, and is dominated by the elaborate Governor's Residence, the Bali Museum, and a monument dedicated to the royalty of Bali who were gunned down by Dutch rifles here in 1906.

Kuta, Bali's first and largest resort, lies a few kilometres southwest of the capital, and has spread from its original core for almost 20 kilometres along the coast, merging with neighbouring Legian. It has a number of upscale hotels, but is mainly popular with budget and mid-range travellers. Its main attraction is its superb beach, which is famed for its surf, but Kuta also has a huge choice of restaurants, bars, colourful shops, nightlife and places to stay.

Sanur, east of Denpasar on the south coast, is a more recent development and is less raucous and a little more up-market than Kuta. It has fewer late-night bars and budget guesthouses and more mid-range resort hotels, but, like Kuta, it has superb beaches.

The Nusa Dua peninsula, which dangles from the south coast, is the epicentre of a planned resort area, with a selection of large, self-contained luxury resort hotels. North of Denpasar (less than an hour's drive from the airport) amid green valleys and rice fields, the hill resort of Ubud has excellent shopping, some of the world's finest boutique hotels, and a slightly cooler climate than the capital and its satellite resorts.

Cruise ships, excursion boats and some inter-island ferries leave from Tanjung Benoa, south of Denpasar on the Nusa Dua isthmus.

CAFES

Bali is one of the islands, where the worlds most expensive coffee is produced.

Kopi Luwak, is coffee made from beans that first have been eaten by the Asian Palm Civet, a kind of marten. When the beans have passed through the animal, and are out again, they are taken care of and are roasted as ordinary coffee beans. If this doesn't appeal to you, all the exotic fruits on the island contributes to a wide array of delicious and refreshing juices.

SHOPPING

The epicentre of shopping in Denpasar is the huge, riverside Pasar Badung. It's a sweaty, multi-storey concrete complex of stores and stalls selling everything from fresh fish, fruit and vegetables to Balinese and Javanese crafts and textiles. On the opposite bank of the river, the Kumbasari Complex houses many small traders peddling cheap batik clothing, jewellery, silverware and dubious antiques.

For international-style retailing, Denpasar also has numerous modern, air-conditioned malls such as New Dewata Ayu and Matahari (opposite each other on Jalan Dewi Sartika). Out of town, Sanggraha Kriya Handicrafts in the eastern suburb of Topathi (8 km from the city centre), has a huge assortment of all Bali's craft products. Prices are fixed.

However, most of the best out of the ordinary shopping in Bali is not in Denpasar, but in the nearby beach resorts of Kuta and Sanur, or in the hill resort of Ubud – all within less than an hour's drive from the city. Kuta is great for cheap beachwear and funky jewellery. Go to Ubud for the best of traditional and contemporary Balinese wood carvings – and be prepared to haggle fiercely to get the best price.

ACCOMMODATIONS

Accommodation in Denpasar caters mainly to Indonesian travellers. The city has its share of functional hotels and guesthouses, but most international visitors head straight for the luxury hotels of Legian and Nusa Dua, the plentiful budget guesthouses of Kuta, the mid-range resort hotels of Sanur, or – a little further away – the gorgeous boutique resorts around Ubud. Hotel prices are given in US Dollar and Rupiah.

Airport

Bali Ngurah Rai International Airport is 13 km west of Denpasar.

Facilities include shops, bar and restaurant, currency exchange, post office, internet access, tourist information office, tour agency, car hire, duty-free shops and VIP lounges.

The best way to get to your hotel from the airport is by taxi. Many resort hotels often offer complimentary minivan or limousine transfers. Taxis, deluxe taxis and bemos (mini-vans) are also available and you find them outside the terminal on the right hand side. Buy a fixed price ticket to your hotel. To Seminyak the fare starts at 60,000Rp, to Legian 55,000Rp, Ubud 195,000Rp Nusa Dua 95,000Rp, Kuta (Discovery) 45,000Rp and Denpasar from 70,000Rp. All prices are per taxi, not per person.

Public transport

Numerous bemos (minibuses) operate on fixed routes around the city and the rest of the island, leaving when full and stopping anywhere on their route on request. Most foreigners find the system confusing and find haggling over fares challenging. There are also buses connecting the bigger cities around the island, operating mostly daytime. Both buses and bemos can be stopped anywhere along their routes.

Taxi

Blue and yellow city taxis can be hailed on the street, at numerous taxi ranks, or called from your hotel or restaurant. They are cheap, by international standards and are much more convenient than bemos. However, be prepared to haggle over fares as taxi meters have failed to keep pace with inflation. Hiring a taxi with a driver can be a good option since the prices are low. Many drivers speak a little English. One of the biggest taxi companies on the island is Bali Taksi & Golden Bird by PT Blue Birds.

Post

Stamps and envelopes can be bought at the concierge desks of all hotels, and this is a much more convenient option than using public post offices. The main post office on the island is located in Denpasar but there are also smaller outlets in most of the bigger towns around the island.

Pharmacy

You can find several different pharmacies on all the different tourist destinations and bigger cities on Bali. The Balinese call them "apoteks" and the biggest chain is Kimia Farma. Before you buy any products take a look at the expiry date since they can be out of date. The main Kimia Farma-pharmacy in Denpasar is located at:
