THE CITY

Among a number of local legends from Nottinghamshire are the literary geniuses Lord Byron and D.H Lawrence. International fashion designer Paul Smith set up his flagship store in the heart of the city where he was born, and Jesse Boot established his first chemist store – Boots' in Nottingham, which soon became a household name across Britain.

Robin Hood, the world's most notorious outlaw, has also awarded the city international fame, and if you are a fan of the hero who stole from the rich to give to the poor, there are many Robin Hood related things to see and do in Nottingham.

Nottinghamshire's castles, caves and cathedrals are just the start of the county's cultural heritage. Nottingham was once the world capital of lace production during the 18th and 19th century. The area famous for lace production – The Lace Market – is now a protected heritage site boasting stunning examples of industrial architecture from the 1700's.

Scattered along the cobbled streets are also some of Nottingham's most popular bars, restaurants and shops.

SHOPPING

High up on your to-do list should be to indulge in some retail therapy, as Nottingham is renowned throughout Britain for its legendary shopping experience.

The main shopping areas in the town centre are all conveniently within walking distance from each other, but for a compact shopping experience you can head to the two main shopping centres – The Victoria Centre and the Broadmarsh Centre. The Victoria Centre is open daily with late night shopping on Wednesdays. Here you will find well-known brands such as John Lewis, as well as a selection of cafés and an indoor market selling food and household goods. The Broadmarsh Centre is not far from the train station and has shops such as BHS, Argos, TK Maxx and JD Sport.

Bridlesmith Gate, south of the Lace Market, is riddled with designer names such as Diesel, Ted Baker and Kurt Geiger. Just off it, you will find the original Paul Smith store on Byard Lane. The Nottingham born British designer also has his flagship store on Low Pavement, selling the best of British fashion.

Head to Hockley for a more alternative shopping experience, where you can find unusual gifts, clothes and accessories. The area around Old Market Square is home to many trendy brands such as French Connection. You can also find popular high street chains such as Jaeger and Oasis in the Exchange Arcade behind the Town Hall.

If you fancy a trip out of town for a more 'local' experience, why not take your pick from Nottinghamshire's many market towns: Mansfield, Southwell, Newark, Worksop or Retford.

ACCOMMODATIONS

Nottingham offers every kind of accommodation to suit your needs. Here you will find well-known hotel brands and smaller private owned hotels. Nottingham has something for every taste and budget.

The Walton

Situated in Nottingham's historic park area, the Walton boasts free Wi-Fi and free private parking. With a restaurant and bar, the prestigious and secluded hotel is just 20 minutes' walk from Nottingham Railway Station.

The property was originally built as a hunting lodge for Nottingham Castle's deer park in the 1800's. The individual en suite rooms boast a flat-screen TV and tea and coffee making facilities.

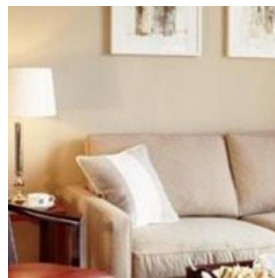

In the mornings, the Walton serves full English breakfast. The Park Terrace Restaurant and Bar offers traditional lunch and evening menus, with dishes prepared using seasonal produce. The bar also features an extensive wine list.

The Walton is just 15 minutes' walk from the vibrant town centre, which is home to the historic Nottingham Castle and a wide range of shops, bars, and theatres. The Galleries of Justice Museum and Capital FM Nottingham Arena are each within a 30-minute walk. East Midlands International Airport is 13 miles away.

Address: 2 North Road, The Park, Nottingham
